WASHINGTON, Sept. 17-The Senate, by a vote of 47 to 21, gave final Congress sional approval today to legislation that. would apparently prohibit most abortions paid for by Medicaid. The measure, along with a $57 billion appropriation to which it was attached, was then sent to the White House.

Proponents of the restriction have argued that abortions are immoral and that the Federal Government should not pay for an immoral act. Opponents of the restriction have defended the morality of the operation and have argued that Federal financing is a social neces

Problems in New York In New York City, for example, public health officials said that Medicaid had paid for 45,000 elective abortions last year and said the loss of Federal funds would shift the burden to overstrained municipal hospitals, and increase the number of dangerous, cut-rate abortions. [Page 9].

The ultimate effect of the Congressional restrictions was somewhat in doubt today.

First, President Ford is expected to veto the bill, not because of the abortion re-. strictions, which he supports, but because the over-all appropriation, for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Department of Labor, is $4 billion above his budget request. Thus, for the abortion ban to be enacted, the voto must be overridden or the language must be attached to a subsequent bill.

Second, there is considerable disagreeof the $1.4 billion Central States, South which are forbidden by the legislation, east and Southwest Areas Pension Fund and the question remains of how the The Fitzsimmons pressure followed hesi-tancy by Mr. Presser in stepping down

Minister Shimon Peres disclosed last night. The meetings were another sign of the temporary thaw in Syrian-Israeli relations.

The degree of hostility between the two countries just a few months ago would bave made such meetings unthinkable. But the Lebancee civil war and Syria's armed intervention there, a move that weakened its Goland defenses, appear to bave caused a reduction in hostility. The Syrian officers met with two Israeli colonels on at least two occasions to work out plans for reuniting Arab fami-lies, Defense Ministry officials said.

The reunions began Wednesday when Arabs from Israel's side of the Golan crossed the truce line to meet relatives waiting on the Syrian side.

The willingness of both sides to permit such teunions is also seen as a sign of eased tensioos on the Golan froot, which until the Lebanese civil war began a year and a half agn was considered the major flashpoiot of Middle East war dangers.

SALISBURY, Rhodesia, Sept. 17-One of the persistent problems dogging any solution to the Rhodesian crisis has been the factionalism that has led black nationalist leaders both inside and outside the country to ettack, discredit and even kill one another. Rivalries have flourished among men committed to the overthrow of the white minority Government of Ian D. Smith. And the proliferation of groups and short-lived coalitions with names like the Zim-Inved coalitions with hants into the Lin-babwe African People's Union, the Zim-babwe African National Union, the Afri-can National Council, the Zimbabwe Lib-eration Council, the Zimbabwe Independ-ent People's Army and the Third. Force has confused even many of those deeply involved in the struggle for majority rule.

The origins of the numerous splits are in tribalism, ideological differences and personality clashes as well as in the di-vide-and-rule tactics of earlier colonial dministrations.

Police Kill at Least One in Soweto During an Anti-Kissinger Protest

By JOHN F. BURNS pecial to The New York Time

JOHANNESBURG, Sept. 17—The police shot and killed at least one black student and possibly as many as six today during demonstrations in Soweto against the three-day visit of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who began talks this afternoon with Prime Minister John Vorster of South Africa.

Several Students Were Wounded The shooting began after students car-rying placards denouncing Mr. Kissinger gathered in schoolyards in the black township, singing black protest songs and hymns. One placard decombed Mr. View hymns. One placard described Mr. Kiss-inger as "a murderer," and another, has consistently published higher casual-pinned to a church fence, read: "Dr. Kiss-ty counts than those issued by the police. your disguised American oppression into Azania." told that he had boped to get a full report on Mr. Smith's views from Mr. Vorster. If the Secretary believes that a meeting with Mr. Smith will result in major progress toward agreement by white-ruled Rhodesia to accept black majority rule within two years and to accept new negotiations with the black nationalists Mr. Kissinger will meet with him, the re-porters were told.

The present negotiations carried out by Mr. Kissinger have been unlike his Middle Eastern mediation because the parties have been so disparate and the black Africans have refused publicly to talk about any compromises. But in Zamtank about any compromises, but in Zam-bia, President Kenneth D. Kaunda, leader of black moderates, made it clear that he strongly favored negotiated solutions on Rhodesia and South-West Africa. On Rhodesia Mr. Kaunda said this morning after a two-hour meeting with Mr. Similar the block African wanted

Mr. Kissinger that black Africans wanted "a firm declaration by the rebel leader [Mr. Smith] that he now favors majority [Mr. Smith] that he now ravors majority rule and then obviously the British Gov-ernment as the legitimate authority in that colony would then have to take the next necessary steps." He said Mr. Kam-da was alluding to the fact that Britain was still regarded as having sovereignty over Rhodesia, which declared its independence in 1965.

South Africa has controlled the former German colony of South-West Africa since 1920 under a League of Nations mandate rescinded by the United Nations. Under pressure from the United Nations to grant South-West Africa independence, South Africa organized an interracial constitutional conference in Windhoek, the region's capital. That conference re-cently set Dec. 31, 1978, as the date for independence. The South-West African People's Organization, recognized as the parior's true representative by black Afriregion's true representative by black Afri-cans, did not participate in the Windhoek talks.

Mr. Kissinger has been trying to get Mr. Vorster to agree to some formula to expand the conference to include South African officials and all parties concerned. Aboard the Kissinger plane, reporters returns to Lusaka Monday, expects to bring back Mr. Vorster's agreement to let the People's Organization take part in a conference about the region and a clear statement of approval for the re-gion's independence. Up to now, black Africans have insisted that only the People's Organization and South Africa should negotiate. But privately Mr. Nyerere and Mr. Kaunda are no on a wider conference Britain has been working with the United States to come up with a formula to promote new negotiations, but they have been conditioned on the Smith regime's Transkei Accord Signed PRETORIA, South Africa, Sept. 17 (AP) peen continuoued on the Smith regime's first accepting majority rule within a limited time period. On South-West Africa he said African leaders wanted independence "and when we speak of independence we mean inde-pendence for all the people who legiti-mately call Namibia theirs regardless of color." -Prime Minister John Vorster and the Transkei Paramount Ghief, Kaiser Matan-zima, signed a series of agreements here today as a prelude to the independence Oct. 26 of the Transkei homeland, or tri-bal reserve. The agreements cover cooperation on economic and industrial de-

Part Plane and Part Boxcar, New Space Shuttle Unveiled

By ROBERT LINDSEY ial to The New York Time

PALMDALE, Calif., Sept. 17-Under a harsh desert sun, and while a brass band played "The Scene From Star Trek." the first manned spacecraft developed by the United States since the Apollo moon landings made its public debut today.

Named Enterprise, for the fictional space ship that roamed the cosmos in the "Star Trek" television series, it looks part airplane, part spacecraft and part railroad boxcar, and its mission is to perform the roles of all of these. "This day, we're about to enter a new eta," said Dr. James C. Fletcher, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, mo-ments before the buge white-and-black craft was towed in front of nearly 1,000 visitors here for the traditional "roll out" ceremony accorded new vehicles of flight

What the spectators saw was the major component, the "orbiter," for the so-called space shuttle, a $7 billion-plus Government affort to close the age of "throwaway" rockets and begin a new one of re-usable ones.

If it works as planned—and survives political criticism over its costs and questions about whether the country needs such a high-volume space-launch system—the shuttle will become sort of an all-purpose space trainer for mili-tary and scientific operations. Carrying a crew of two or more, # will be moved into orbit like a conventional satellite by three powerful engines in its tail and two strapped-on solid fuel boosters. The boosters, plus a behemoth cannister containing liquid fuel for its engines, will be jettisoned during the ascent. Once in space, the shuttle will drop off satellites much like a highway truck or tramp steamer making its rounds, then re-enter the atmosphere, land like an airplane and be refurbished for future flights.

Government officials said it will be useful for resupplying future space laboratories, for carrying specialists who can repair satellites and for direct observation of natural resources, weather or foreign military installations.

The craft shown today, its nose near the ground on a tricycle landing gear as it edged toward the crowd, was not ready for space flight. It has dummy engines and other components that are not flight-ready. It will be taken aloft next summer, riding piggyback atop a Bdeing 747 jumbo jet, for landing tests designed to verify how well it will glide back into the atmosphere from space. At more than 120 feet long the En-terprise vaguely resembles a jetliner.

But its wings are short and stubby, and its fuselage is not the familiar nar-row tube, but box-shaped, giving the midsection the appearance of a railroad boxcar with a cockpit in the front. The center pit contains a 60-foot-long, 15foot-wide cargo hay.

Congress has authorized construction of two shuttles, with the first orbital space flights scheduled in the spring space flights scheduled in the spring of 1979. NASA will launch and recover its orbiters at Cape Canavarel, and the Air Force will operate its craft from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif. The two agencies are now seeking Whits House approval to build at least two more shuttle orbiters.

The shuttle will be capable of carry ing a huge payload—more than 60,000 pounds to an orbit 100 miles from Earth. Critics have wondered whether the country needs such lifting power when space exploration has been winding down.

As projected costs for the develop-ment and each flight have risen, critics, including Senator Walter F. Mondale, the Democratic candidate for Vice President, have said it might make more economic sense to continue using throwaway rockets for the limited number of launches they feel are justifiable.

At today's ceremonies, such criticism seemed to be on the minds of several speakers who defended the project.

Noting that America's first orbital flight took place 14 years ago, Senator Barry M. Goldwater, Republican of Arizona, said the space shuttle would make space flight a "routine" experi-

"I submit the space shuttle will present us with a remarkable oppor-tunity to exploit the new frontier of space for the benefit of all mankind and continue to expand our knowledge of the space environment in which we live " Senator Goldwater said.

Willard F. Rockwell, chairman of the board of Rockwell International, the prime contractor for the shuttle, said that it would usher in an era when man does not simply explore space, but utilizes it for specialized manufactur-ing techniques, to develop natural re-sources, and combat polintion, food shortages and other problems on Earth.

shortages and other problems on Larth. Space agency officials had intended to name the craft introduced today "Constitution." But they were over-ruled by President Ford, who had been urged by "Star Trek" fans to adopt the name "Enterprise." Some members of the "Star Trek" cast, including Leonard Nimoy, were in the audience for the roll out ceremony.

Nominee Says 'It's a Great Honor For Me to Be Campaigning' With

Senators in Mississippi

By JAMES T. WOOTEN al to The New York The BILOXI, Miss., Sept. 17-Jimmy Carter an avowed champion of civil rights, went looking for Southern support here today, arm in arm with two of the country's most prominent segregationists, Senators James O. Eastland and John C. Stennis.

"It's a great honor for me to be cam-paigning" with them, the Democratic Presidential nominee said, describing the Senators as "kaders" and "statesmen" who have been "committed to absolute integrity."

In response, tha two men who have In response, tha two men who have tried vigorously and sometimes success-fully—to abort every civil rights hill in-troduced in their long Congressional ca-reers said they were happy to endorse the candidacy of a man who has called such measures "the greatest thing that ever happened to the South" in his life-time. time

It has been 20 years since either of the Senators, both of whom hold enormous sway over the political directions of their state, has taken an active interest in the fate of their party's Presidential nominae in Mississippi and 20 years since a Democrat has won its electoral votes. But hoth Senators predicted an over-whelming victory for Mr. Carter this November and readily agreed to fly with him to Biloxi from Washington to lend the strength of their presence to his local pursuits.

Like so many other Democrats in this Like so many other Demotrals in this part of the country, long estranged from the nominees of the national party, Sena-tors Stennis and Eastland seemed not only eager to return to the fold but also exhilarated by the prospect of sending a fellow Southerner to the White House.

Reflection of Carter Success

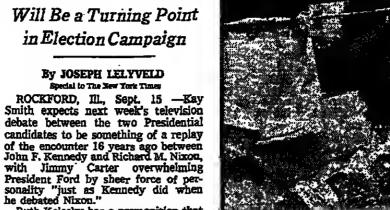

Similarly, their endorsement of Mr. Carter was a reflection of his success as a candidate whose own lack of static ideology has enabled him to attract the support of radically disparate facets of the traditionally fragmented party.

The occasion today also offered a miniature portrait of the modern South, a region whose people and politics have been drastically altered in the 23 years since Mr. Carter resigned his commission in the Nsvy and went home to Plains,

Soon after his return, in the spring of 1954, the Supreme Court ordered an end to segregated public education, ushering in an era of change, much of it violent, that would shape the course of the South in the years to come.

By anticipating the worst for their candidates in the de-bate they seem to be throwing up meanbate, they seem to be throwing up men-tal barricades to protect their voting decisions from the chance impressions of a television event. The middle-class neighborhood in which they live on the northwest side of Rockford has been strikingly inde-pendent in its voting habits and un-canny in its ability to back the winners in recent state and national elections. Two days of donr-to-door interviewing in the neighborhood indicated that there are few voters who have not formed some kind of expectation of the debate in the belief, shared by political leaders across the country, that it is likely to be a turning point in the campaign.

Carter Support Seen Slipping

Carter Support Seen Slipping Those who think the debate may pre-cipitate their own voting decisions are mostly now leaning to Mr. Carter. Often, voters could describe this Often, voters could describe this sense of slippage as a personal experi-ence, traceable in its origins to the fleeting impressions of the candidates left every night hy the television news programs, "I thought I liked Carter," said Susan Shields, "but now I'm get-ting more confused." "During the convention, it seemed like Carter had some good ideas," said George Peacock, who recently retired as a salesman for a tool company. "But now he's dropped them. What Voters Will Look For

In each case these voters indicated that they would be watching the debates not so much to measure Mr. Carter against the President, but simply to measure Mr. Carter in hopes that he will come into a clear and vivid focus once and for all. 'It will be an opportunity to find

The fact that it is a fact was much in evidence in Bilaxi

There were black policemen and black state troopers assisting Mr. Carter's long motorcade in its journey from the airport to a local hotel, where he attacked President Ford's economic policies, then on to the shrimp boat piers, where he once again extolled the Senators' virtues.

There was a hlack assistant manager at the hotel and a headwaiter in its res taurant, and when the candidate was hus tled from his speech into a fund-raising reception for a local Congressional candidate, whose campaign consultant is George Wallace's former press secretary, there were hlack couples waiting, we dressed with drinks in hand, committed not only to the white man running for the House hut also tolerant of his frequest acquiescence to the Stennis-East-land instincts of the local electorate.

The drive-in theater, just outside town featured tonight two movies starring Diana Ross, the hlack actress, and when Mr. Carter'a plane landed, Dr. Aaron Henry, a black dentist from Clarksdale, Miss., and a hattle-scarred veteran of numerous civil rights hattles here, was on hand to welcome the candidate and the two white Senators as well.

"John, how are you? Dr. Henry said to Senator Stennis, grasping the Senator's hand and giving him a pat on the hack. "Lord, I'm gisd to see you again." Candidate Proud of Transition

Mr. Carter, who watched mnch the same thing happening in Georgia both before and after he was Governor there said he was very proud of the transition He said that he and others like the Mississippi Senators had faced and shaped ra-cial change in the South "with courage." 'Tha changes were made not solely hy

the Supreme Court, or solely by the Con gress." he said. "The changes were made by literally hundreds even thousands of school hoard members, city councilmen, county officials and others who did accept complete and total integration of the South."

Mr. Carter went on to question a reporter's contention that since the Senators oppose all such hills, they seem to represent the autithesis of his view that the civil rights acts of the 1960's were beneficial to the South.

"I douht that that's correct." the candidate said.

'I never voted for a civil rights bill in my life," said Senator Stennis.

"Neither did I," said Senator Eastland Mr. Carter, who accepted the endorsement of the National Education Association this morning in Washington, flew from here to Hot Springs, Ark., for his twelfth campaign event in the South in the last 12 days.

Chopped liver is a delicacy on the table, but today it's a glut on the market. Prices have sunk to a 20-year low. supplies bave risen to an all-time high. While politicians and their professors debate such esoteric matters as foreign policy and even morality, liver is going to the dogs-and cats. Cattle are being slaughtered in record numbers, livers accumulate, importers disappear. Japan, which jumped into the market a couple of years ago, has jumped out.

Mapping Out an Underground Style

The M.T.A. token is being used as jewelry.

By LAWRENCE VAN GELDER

Taking a cue from London Transport and some inspiration from Herald . Square, the Metropolitan Transportation Authority, which frequently takes a dressing down from its riders, is doing something about dressing them up. Charting a course designed to augment revenues, the M.T.A. has taken to licensing the use of its copyrighted map on T-shirts, tote bags, dresses and jackets and has already made more than a token gesture in the direction of some distinctively underground jewelry.

"We're delighted," was the way Claire McCarthy, director of marketing for the M.T.A., summed up official reaction on early reports of sales of the apparel and bags that began making their appearance in stores recently.

Royalties For M.T.A.

The initial line included T-shirts for men, women and children; a T-dress; jackets and the tote bag, licensed through agreements calculated to produce a 5 percent royalty for the M.T.A.'s marketing operation.

"It will supplement our budget for printing and publicity, that kind of thing," Miss McCarthy said. "One of our basic efforts is to get information. out to the public on our special programs-culture buses, the nightcoach, shoppers specials, and general promo-tion to get people onto the subways and buses. That's our whole purpose."

Tracing the development of the licensing of the map, Miss McCarthy said part of the idea came from the M.T.A.'s counterpart in London (many Americans have souvenir tea cloths imprinted with a map of the London Underground system) and a good deal of the encouragement and know-how came from the M.T.A. chairman, David Yunich, who used to run Macy's and she said-is "pro-marketing" and experienced in licensing. The first royalties on the clothing aren't in yet, but the M.T.A. says the word is that its map-imprinted items are selling very well in New York. Some items bear a large section of the Manhattan subway map; others have the Brooklyn lines, in the bright colors familiar to straphangers.

The T-shirts, priced at $12 for the women's, $13 for the men's and $7 for the children's, are available at Bloomingdale's, Saks Fifth Avenue, Gimbels, Macy's, the French Jeans Store, Baccarat, the New York Public Library at Fifth Avenue and 42d Street, the Columbia University Book Store and other stores and boutiques.

According to the M.T.A., the tote bags are at Bloomingdele's, Saks Fifth Avenue and Capezio outlets in Green-Avenue and Capezo outers in Green-wich Village and Forest Hills. The bags are priced at $10. The goods are also being sold in Los Angeles, San Pran-cisco, Washington, Las Vegas, San An-tonio, Miami end the Hamptons, Miss McCarthy said.

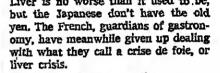

New Items for Fall

Jackets, at $10, and T-dresses, at $21, were summer items and are where you can find them. But coming up for autumn is a long-sleeved Tshirt with a beige background and the imprinted map.

In prospect: perhaps a scart or an umbrella.

Beginning to appear is token jewelry. Jewelry, that is, using the M.T.A. token to form pendants, earrings, rings, cufflinks and blazer buttons. Unlike the tokens sold in the subway changebooths, these will be solid gold and gold plated. And if anyone is desperate, the larger ones will buy a ride, but, as Miss McCarthy pointed out:

"It would be awfully expensive."

That leaves the great liver-consuming state of Israel, struggling, as usual, with one crisis too many. Harvey Potkin of Kosher King Meat Products has just returned from Israel and his report is bleak: "Israel is oversupplied with the product. The market fell out of the bottom."

A Glut of Livers

Sidney Schweid, a meat man from Paterson, N. J., hrings equally fresh gloom: "Losing 10 cents a pound, I offered them [his customers] calves' livers at 45 cents, and they wouldn't take them. There's a glut of livers."

Abe Lebewohl, owner of the Second Avenue Delicatessen, who traditionally distributes free chopped liver canapes to customers waiting for tables, can hardly credit this sudden millennium, "You took four ribs," his meat supnlier said to him. "Please, Abe, take a few livers."

Supermarkets such as D'Agostino and Waldbaum are selling beef liver at 69 cents a pound.

The National Provisioner Daily Market and News Service, keeper of the wholesale records, reports that in 20ton stockyard lots, selected heifer and steer liver is now 18 cents a pound. Ir 1974, it was np to 611/2; not since 1956 had it been as low as 19.

"Edible fat that goes into cooking grease costs 16 cents-and it doesn' have nutritional value," Mr. Potki; highly nutritious item like liver fo 18 cents.

A Matter of Taste

"The nature of people being what they are, even though they like good bargain they're not going to es something that doesn't agree with the taste. I'm the biggest distributor (kosher liver in the country. My kidsa 13, a 10 and a 5-you put a piec of liver on the table, they run out (the house."

"Tve had a very difficult summer Mr. Potkin went on. 'Take Weinberge of Mrs. Weinberg's Kosher Choppe Liver. Normally he pays me 48 to ! cent a pound. I can't get him to pr me 30 cents."

"They're falling all over their fe to sell to me," said Sidney Weinberge president of the company, which us 3,500 pounds of liver daily. "I've beoffered prices so low I can't belie them."

New York's Croatians: Close-KnitandF

By MOLLY IVINS

If there is one safe generalization to be made about Croats, who maintain a close, church-centered community in New York City, it is that there is noth-ing lukewarm about them.

"They love to love and they love to hate," said a former American corre-spondent in Yugoslavia.

Perhaps because so many of them are first-generation immigrants-it is estimated that up to 85 percent of the 60,000 Croats (pronounced CROW-ats) in the city have come here since World War II—they stick together fiercely.

From these tight, passionately patri-olic people, who tend to think of them-selves as exiles rather than immigrants, came four of the five hijackers who took a T.W.A. 727 haif-way around the world last week.

There are strains of pain and paranoia in the Croatian community bere. Ask the question, 'How many relatives did you lose in the Second War?" and a frequent answer is "25." Most of the children who arrived here after the war

"We are trying to suppress the memory of our holocaust," said the Rev. Miellan Chvelo, pastor at the church of Saints Cyril and Methodius and St. Raphael, 405 West 41st Street. St. Raphael's is the heart of the Croatian community in the metropolitan area, and some Croatians say it is the largest Roman Catholic coogregation in the city.

A spokesmao for the Catholic Archdiocese said St. Raphael's was a national parish, with affiliated members in New Jersey, Connecticut and Pennsylvania, so it had oo city ranking as to

In what may have been an effort to retaliate for last week's hijacking, a bomb went off near St. Raphael's Thursday night. The device was not in the church, but broke wiodows.

Church An All-Weekend Affair

For many members of the coogregation, church is an all-weekend affair, Daycare is provided for children while the parents discuss politics and socialrelations for the Croatian National Congress. "It's because the priests have been persecuted in Yugoslavia: they are considered the bravest and most extraordinary fighters for freedom. The religious theme runs through the whole family.

Each summer et Hrvatska Zer.lja. or Croatian Highlaods, a small park in Montville, N.J., thousands of Croats come from as far away as Pennsylvenia to feast on barbecued lamb, been patties called cevapcici and a Croatian variation of apple strudel. There is an ebullient, boisterous quality about the ebullient, boisterous quality about the songs and dances. And they play games of medieval origin, as well as soccer, and imbibe much beer aod wine. As a group, Croats tend to be rela-tively small, have hrown skin and dark curly hair. The men still favor full mustaches, but few of the women wear bebuebles. When a Croat wants to inbabushkas. When a Croat wants to in-sult another Croat, he calls him a Yugoslev.

Croats and their politics are some-times reminiscent of an old Tom Lehrer times reminiscent of an old Tom Lehrer song. The Croats hate the Serbs, the Serbs hate the Montenegrins, and the Bulgars hate the Macedonians, who don't like the Rumanians, who don't like the Albanians, who don't like any-body much. This is the kind of thing that puts Balkan into the dictionary are a term as e verb.

Differences in Croatia

Even within Croatia, there are notable differences between the Slovenes. Bosnians, Herzagovinlans and Dalma-tians according to 72-year-old John Pintor, an American wbo lived in Croztia from 1933 to-1950.

The fragile federation called Yugoslavia was broken up during World War II and an independent state of Croetia was created on April 10, 1941. a date still celebrated in the Croatian community here. Croatia was then headed by a Hitler-Mussolini puppet named Aote Pavelic who headed a Fascist organiation, the Ustashi.

Because of centuries of bad blocd the Croats massacred about 100,000 Serbs who were living in Croatia during World War. II. When Marsbal Tito's Communist forces took over Croatia after the war, there was massive retribution, which the Croets allege has continued ever since. In 1971, the so-called "Croatian spring." a move to decentralize Yugoslevian government and give Croatie more in-dependence, was crushed with massive purges of the Crnatian

CHICAGO, Sept. 17 (AP)-Jerry Mo-rates's bases-loaded single with two out in the 12th inning sent Champ Summers home with an uncarned run today and gave the Chicago Cubs a 4-3 tri-umph over the slumping Philadelphis: Phillie

SPORTS

The loss was the third straight and the 18th in the last 28 games for the Phillies, whose first-place lead in the National League's Eastern Division was cut to three games over the Pittsburgh

Pirates. With one out in the 12th Summers, in a pinch-hitting role, hit a pop fly to the Phils' shortstop, Larry Bowa. Bowa, who bad tied the game in the ninth with a run-scoring triple, dropped the ball for a two-base error. Mick Kelleher then popped up and Joe Wallis was given an intentional pass. Pete LaCock walked to load the bases before Morales bounced his single into left off the loser, Ron Reed. Bruce Sutter was the winner, hurling three perfect innings in relief.

Phils Rally in Ninth

Philadelphia had come back from a. 3-1 deficit to tie the score in the ninth inning on a one-out double by Jay Johnstone and a two-out single by Bob Boone, which was followed by Bowa's triple. With Bowa on third, Darold Knowles came on in relief and struck out Ollie Brown.

How the Phillies Phainted in '64

Gene Mauch, manager, 1964 Phillies. Gene Mauch

As the Philadelphia Phillies struggled to hold what's left of their once-phabulous 15%-game lead over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East, the frame of reference for historians and vultures is the memory of the 1964 Phillies' phaint. Those phamous Phillies were in first place by 61/2 games with only 12 games remaining. Every baseball triviot knows that they then lost 10 consecutive games and finished in a second-place tie with the Cincinnati Reds as the St. Louis Cardinals won the pennant and the World Series. But who were those Phillies, and how did they turn the magic number into Sports the tragic number?

of Many people in Philadelphia still blame The Times Gene Mauch, the bristling manager, but he did not have much of a team. In retrospect, the Phillies' 61/2-game lead was more surprising than their eventual tie for second place.

Dick Allen, then known as Richie, was a rookie-of-theyear third baseman with 29 homers, 91 runs batted in, but 40 errors. Johnny Callison was an outfielder with 27 home runs. But they and Tony Taylor, the second baseman, were the only everyday regulars. Mauch juggled his other players -Danny Cater, Frank Thomas, Vic Power, Ruben Amaro, Bobby Wine, Cookie Rojas, Wes Covington, Johnny Briggs, Alex Johnson, Clay Dalrympie and Gus Triandos.

Two Healthy Starters

As the only healthy starters, Jim Bunning and Chris Short had to pitch with only two days' rest. Dennis Bennett had a sore shoulder but pitched. Ray Culp had a sore shoulder but didn't pitch. Art Mahaffey was inconsistent. Rick Wise was a rookie. Jack Baldschun, Bobby Shantz and Ed Roebuck were in the bull pen. And when the Phillies returned to now-leveled Connie Mack Stadium for a seven-game home stand, it happened:

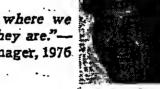

Monday, Sept. 21 - The Reds won, 1-0, behind John Tsitouris when Chico Ruiz stole home in the sixth inning with Frank Robinson up. "I told myself," Ruiz explained, "if Mahaffey winds up slow again, I go." In his panic, Mahaffey uncorked a wild pitch. But the Phillies still led the Reds by 51/2 games, the Cardinals by 6 games.

Tuesday, Sept. 22 - The Reds battered Short, 9-2, and trailed by 41/2 games. That's when Manch said, "I'd rather be where we are than where they are." But the Reds' manager, Dick Sisier, predicted, "It's going to be tough on the Phillies because they play the Cardinals and that's two teams fighting for position. It could go down to the end."

Wednesday, Sept. 23 — Sammy Ellis struck out Callisoo and Taylor with the bases loaded in the seventh as the Reds watching," said Steve Boros of the Reds, "a definition of momentum." The Cardinals were five games out. Thursday, Sept. 24—The Milwankee Braves won, 5-3; and when Mauch was asked if he now planned any drastic moves, he replied, "There are no drastic moves. You play 162 games and you try to win as many as you can." But the Reds were only three games out, the Cardinals only 31/2 out. Friday, Sept. 25—Some players wanted a pregame meet-ing, others ddn't. "There are some things that could be said that the manager might not say." Covington contended. "If you can tell me how to hit a line drive, let's have a meeting," Callison said. "If not, forget it." No meeting, And the Braves won, 7-5, as the Reds moved to within 11/2 games, the Cardinals to within 2½. Saturday, Sept. 28 - The Braves wori, 64, when Rico

Carty bit a bases-loaded triple off Shantz in the ninth. Suddenly the Phillies had lost six straight, the Reds were one-half games behind, the Cardinals only 1½ games behind. Sunday, Sept. 27-The Phillies dropped into second place when the Braves won, 14-8, despite Callison's three homers. The Reds moved into first place by one game, with the Cardinals still 11/2 games out, But Mauch remained unusually calm. "We're better off going after something than holding it," he said. "We've got to win two [of three] in St. Louis and two in Cincinnati, the pitchers have to do the job." But in the seven consecutive losses Mauch had used 30 pitchers.

Monday, Sept. 28-Another loss, 5-1, to Bob Gibson in St. Louis dropped the Phillies to third place, 114 games behind the Reds and one-half game behind the Cardinals. But Mauch said bravely, "We've got time. We've won four in a row a lot more often than we've lost four in a row."

Simmons Seals Doom

Tuesday, Sept. 29-Despite his sore shoulder, Bennett started. "Fil put some hot stuff on it in the fourth inning." But he was chased in the second in a 4-2 loss as the Cardinals tied the Reds for first place, with the Phillies third, 1½ games out. Callison had the flu; but got a pinch single. When he got to first base, he was shivering so much that Bill White had to button his warmup jacket. Wednesday, Sept. 30-Curt Simmons, signed by the Cardinals when the Phillies released him in 1960, won his 18th game that season, 8-5, as Bunning started his third game with only two days' rest.

"I don't want to bear anyone saying the poor Phillies," said Bunning after the 10th straight loss. "It's our own fault. All of our own fault" They were now 21/2 games behind the Cardinals.

On the final weekend, the Phillies defeated the Reds twice. Bot it was too late to prevent the '64 Phillies from becoming won again, 6-4, and moved to within 31/2 games: "You are 'a symbol of collapse, a symbol that haunts the "76 Phillies.

Penn State was involved in another famous 12th-man incident and won the game. That was in the 1969 Orange Bowl game when the undefeated Nittany Lions beat Kansas, 15-14, on the last play of the game, a 2-point conversion. After failing to score on an initial conversion try, Penn State got a second chance and succeeded because officials had detected a 12th man on the Kansas times of my life," Aaron said when it was his turn to speak. "This is the end for me. This is the last year I'll probably be in competition in baseball."

An hour earlier, Aaron sat in front of his locker in the Brewers' clubhouse discussing his past, his present and his future. Someone mentioned that he looked beavier than usual, a result of his recent inactivity.

"My mother said the same thing," Henry remarked. "She told me I-really put on a lot of weight. But I'm en-titled to get fat once in my life." Aaron's major league baseball life, which began in Milwaukee in 1954, has been filled with numerous career records that may never be surpassed, but this season has been filled with mixed feelings.

"I guess I've been looking at the calendar and hoping I could push it back further," he said. "I suppose coming over here and being the designated hitter got me to the point where I'm ready to accept retring more than if I had been playing all the time. But it's still been the most disappointing season of my life. I just wish I would have had a better year, and I would have if my legs had been in better shape."

The Record List

In his first 22 major league years, Aaron averaged 146 games and 520 plate appearances a season. In that time he established records for most home runs, most runs batted in, most games, most plate appearances, most extra-base hits, most total bases and assorted other achievements. This season, though, he has played in 81 games and has yet to reach 300 times at bat.

Aaron recalled that he was hitless in three times at bat in his first game against Joe Nuxhall and he remembered that he hit his first home run off Vic Reschi, who was on dand tonight for the salute.

"Im goma miss the competition, going one on one with the pitcher," he said, discussing his impending retirement. "Tve always liked that part of the game, guessing with the pitcher and catcher what the pitch is going to be and where it's going."

Aaron said, however, that his base-ball ability began slipping three years ago, at the age of 39, which makes Jack Benny such a smart person for having stayed that age for so long.

asterners used to start their seasons by playing nonleague opponents just. to warm up for the Ivy campaign that means so much to them. Most of the Ivy coaches are unhappy meeting a league for on opening day. Andy Gei-ger, Penn's athletic director, said, "Well, it's the same on both sides of the field, isn't it?"

Bill Campbell, the Columbia coach, has to send his Lions into the Crimson den against Harvard at Cambridge, Mass. He said, "If I were Harvard I'd want to be opening against Columbia, too.'

Using a rather non-Ivy League term, seven of the eight Ivy coaches say, "Harvard is loaded." It appears that way with Jim Kubacki, the southpaw quarterback, leading the offense and Bill Emper, an outstanding back, lead-ing the defense. Columbia can hardly be expected to do much against Kubacki, who handles the intricate Har-ward offense as if it were a simple operation.

In the other Ivy openers, Penn is at Dartmouth and Princeton at Cornell. Yale and Brown may give Harvard its strongest opposition as the Crimson attempts to repeat as Ivy champion. Car-men Cozza has not decided or, at least, is not saying if this will be his last season as the EH coach. He is also the athletic director, a job that may de-mand too much of his time in the future. Pittsburgh and Tony Dorsett run at Georgia Tech tonight in Atlanta. Rut-gers, with dreams of big things after the victory over Nevy, plays at Buck-nell and Boston College, which had the biggest of last Saturday's upsets in a victory over Texas, has the day off.

really is, we decided to have an independent testing company compare it with what we thought was the toughest competition around: a BMW 2002.

They ran both cars through a series of performance tests designed to measure those characteristics that make a car a true road car: a skid pad test to measure G-Force in cornering, a slalorn course for handling, and, of course, acceleration and braking tests.

The results confirmed what we expected As the chart shows, the Saab and BMW 2002 are quite a match. The Saab was a least an equal in every category. We weren t surprised, but a number of BMW owners may be.

However, don't just take our word for it. There's only one way to find out how good a car really is. Drive it. We did. And look at what happened.

United States District Court Judge Judge Robert Schnacke in San Francisco ruled that the National Hockey League rule requiring a player to have good sight in both eyes is neither a violation of the antitrust laws nor a boycott but is intended for protection. Neeld, who lost an eye playing junior hockey in Canada, was a 4th-round pick of Buffalo. The league turned down, 12-3, his request to amend the eyesight rule. The Jets might not be as powerful as Ralston expects, although Holtz said yesterday, "For the first time, we're doing more good things than bad

Books of The Times A Cram Course in Islam

- By ALDEN WHITMAN

ISLAM AND THE ARAB WORLD: Faith. People, Culture, Edifed by Bernard Lewis. 350 pages, Illustrated. Alfred A. Knapf in adsociation with the American Heritage Publishing Com-pany, $29.95 until Dec. 31, $35 there-after.

It is safe to say that most Ameri-cans know next to nothing about the Arab world, although its growing im-portance to the United States economy as a producer of oil and as a purchase of arms would suggest that we should take a cram course, and speedily. Just such a course, but on a sophisticated level, has been put together by Bernard Lewis of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, N.J. With the help of some 13 ranking Islamicists and Arabists in the West, Professor Lewis has produced a splendid survey that is agreeably enriched by almost 500 pho-tographs, reproductions, drawings and maps, 160 of them in color.

The accent is on the lands and peo-ples of Islam, of whom the Arabs are now the smallest part. The whole constitutes both a religion and a civiliza-tion, and both have been widely misthe erroneous notion that "Mohammed was for Moslems what Christ was for Christians."

Brisk, Compact History

Because we generally misconceive Islam, Professor Lewis starts with a brisk and compact history that is vir-tually a primer. "When Mohammed died, his spiritual and prophetic mis-sion was completed," the editor writes; adding:

"His God-given task had been to restore the true monotheism taught by earlier prophets and then distorted and subverted; to abolish idolatry; to make subverted; to anoish idoletry; to make known God's revelation embodying the true religion and the divine law. This he did during his lifetime. In Muslim belief, he was the last of the prophets. "When he died, in 632, the revelation of God's will to mankind had been completed. There would be no more prophete and no more prevalutions." prophets and no more revelations.

"However, though the spiritual func-tion was at an end, the religious func-tion remained; that of maintaining and defending the divine law and bringing, it to the rest of mankind. The effective discharge of this religious function also required the exercise of political and military conversion a word of covermilitary power-in a word, of sover-eignty-in a state." Professor Lewis employs to excellent

Professor Lewis employs to excellent effect his lucidity of style in explaining the Islamic faith and those who profess it. If he is descriptive rather than criti-cal, he also cannot be said to extol either the Moslem form of human bondage or the low estate of Moslem women. He neatly offers the theory and then presents the contrasting facts. Although the basics of Islam at a

Although the basics of Islam as a religion are similar wherever it put down its roots, its very extent—from the Mediterranean world to the distant cultures of Asia and Africa-has re-sulted in a distinctive culture, which has contributed significantly to the arts and sciences of mankind. It is a culture of many common features, as it had to be, but also of great diversity as a result of disparate geographic, ethnic and historical forces.

The difficulty of describing this cul-ture easily is suggested by Richard Ettinghausen of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, who, writing about Is-lamic art, notes that its "many-styles extended over an enormous time span" from the late 7th century into the early-19th. Nonetheless, the contributors to; this book do manage to impose an order of sorts on the multinational constituents of Islamic culture.

Some succeed better than others. Mr. Ettinghausen, whose task is ad-mittedly formidable, is more pedantic than I should have liked, whereas Diegthan I should have liked, whereas Oreg-Grabar of Harvard University writes, with great panache about Islamic tities, and their residents. An equal sophisti-cation is displayed by Charles Pellat of the University of Paris in his chapter on literature. A. I. Sabra, also of Har-vard, is a pleasant master of the rise of science and philosophy in Islam.

In these fields, as in music, Islam was a transmission belt for Greek learning, passing on the works of Aris-totle, Euclid and others to the West after they had been obscured in the Dark Ages. In receptivity to Greek thought, the Islamic world was far-more alert in the 10th century than the Christian world.

Both A. Shilosh of the Hebrew Uni-versity in Jerusalem, who writes about music, and Professor Sabra are bedeviled by the same problem: lack of adequate space. Professor Sabra had had to squeeze science and philosophylin-to just 10 double-column pages. But it is a conjurer's trick to which he is equal. And Professor Shiloah is simi-larly gifted in the art of compression."

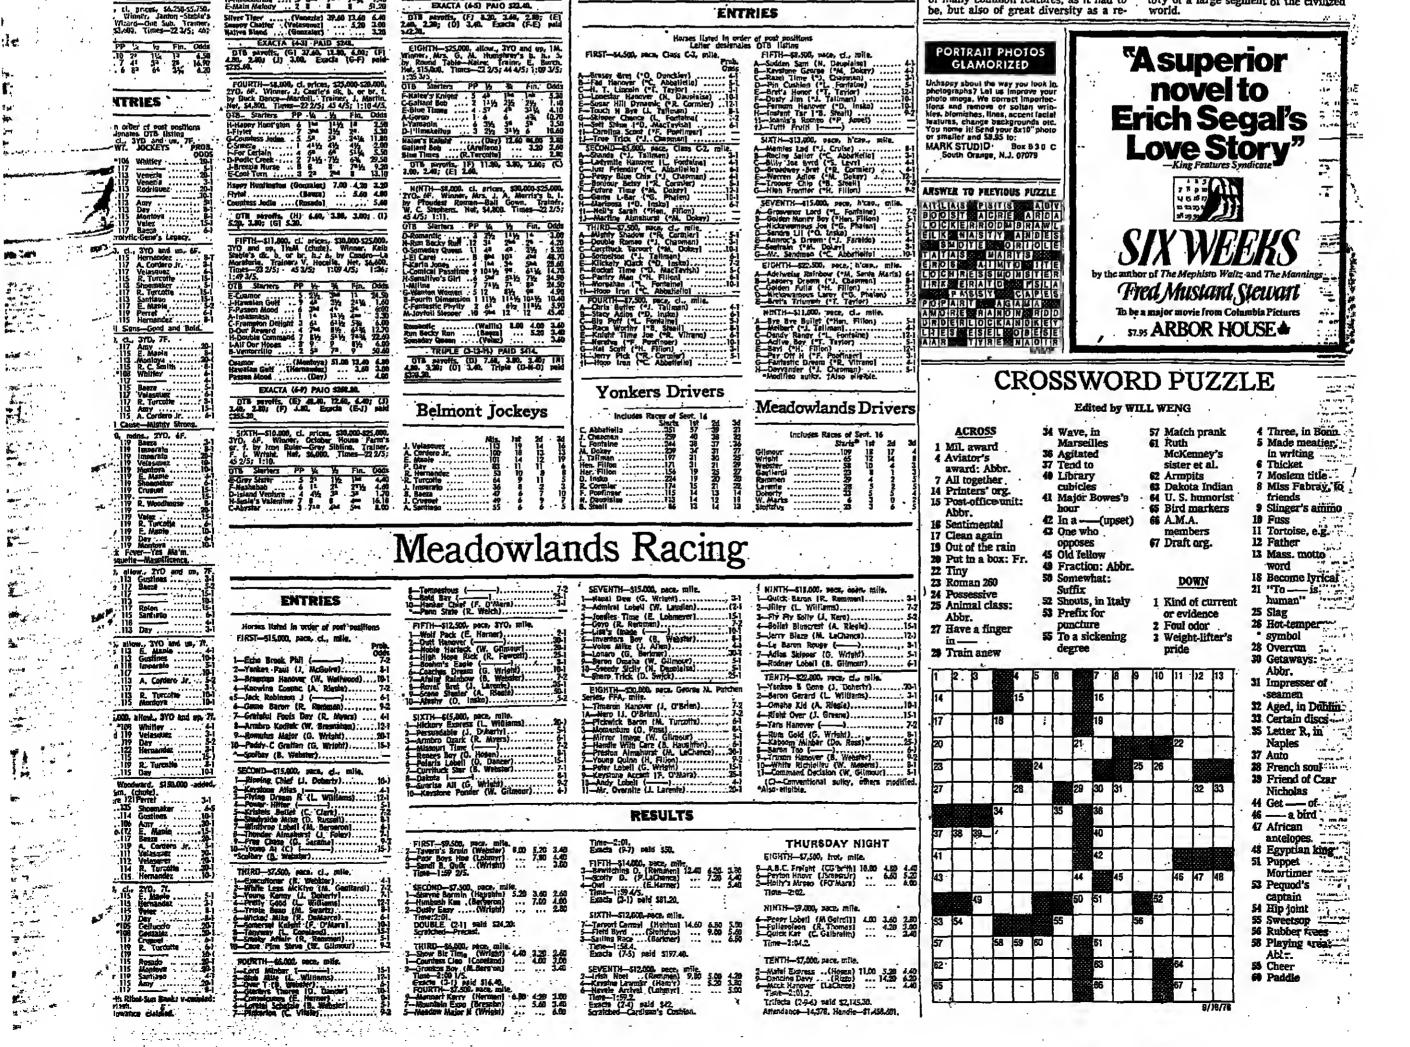

There is, however, one jarring chap-ter that mars an otherwise fair, and belanced book, and that is the one-dealing with Iran. Written by Roger M. Savory of the University of Toronto, it reads in part like undiluted propaganda.

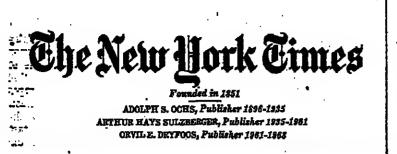

Praise for the Shah

Although the early sections of the chapter on Iranian history and culture are quite straightforward and scholarly, those parts dealing with the present Shah verge on sycophancy. "During the last decade." Professor Savory says." "the White Revolution of the Shah and " the people," as the Shah likes to call it.,... has enabled Iran to make unprecedent: ed progress." ed progress."

Except for some "stresses and." Except for some "stresses and.". Except for some "stresses and.". strains" due to the pace of moderniza... tion, praise for the Shah is virtually unalloyed. But Iran is an authoritarian military state; its land reform is a joke; its politics are corrupt and feudal; and its reigning head, armed to the teeth by the Pentagon, poses a very. real danger to peace and stability in the Middle East. Did Professor Lewis nod over this essay? Charitably, 1 hope is. Although the world of Islam is still a small presence in the United States; this book is a very good introduction indeed to a poteotial landlord. More than that, it is a thinking man's guide to the faith, customs, culture and his tory of a large segment of the civilized world.

Abortion Politics

-The announcement by the Roman Catholic hierarchy that the church leadership is "absolutely neutral" in the Presidential contest removes a potentially divisive element from the campaign. The bisbops' earlier meetings with President Ford and former Governor Carter to discuss the candidates' stand on abortion created the disconcerting impression that religious institutions as such were being introduced into the political arenawith potentially damaging effects on politics and religion alike.

"Widespread critical response to these meetings from Catholic as well as non-Catholic quarters suggests a gratifying degree of public understanding of the importance of preventing what the Rev. Timothy S. Healy, president of Georgetown University, called the identification of the church with a political party. That danger has been averted through the unequivocal statement by Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin: "It is not our job to endorse candidates or oppose candidates."

Past voting patterns and public opinion research show that views concerning abortion engender a controversy that cuts through all demographic and religious lines. The policy of the Roman Catholic Cburch to seek a constitutional amendment that would virtually amount to a ban on abortions is shared by some Americans, Catholics and non-Catholics, on religious and other moral grounds; it is rejected hy many others-by all accounts a majority. It is an issue on which individual Americans must follow their conscience.

The abortion issue cannot rationally and properly be made part of the political dialogue of a Presidential campaign. As individuals, the two candidates have already stated their personal disapproval of abortion. With the church's declaration of neutrality concerning the candidates, it would be well for Messrs. Ford and Carter to put an end to their demeaning maneuvers at trying to devise an "abortion stand" guaranteed to garner th: greatest number of votes.

Mike Mansfield Departs

He described the farewell tributes paid him by his colleagues as "benevolent exaggeration." But there was not exaggeration in the genuine and well-deserved feelings"of fondness for Mike Mansfield as his career in the Senate came to an end after 24 years of representing the people of Montana and 16 years as the majority leader of the Senate.

His approach to leadership, sometimes criticized as too relaxed in the face of grave issues, reflected personal qualities of simple honesty, distaste for bomhast, quiet decency. In an era of verbal overkill and inflated imagery, his understated ways may have been mistaken at times for inadequate concern: yet. Senator Mansfield's record leaves no doubt about his deep concern for a just and responsible America with an abiding involvement in the search for peace and freedom.

care and Medicaid funds, no one can fault the Commissioner's concern over the state of civic morality. Mr. Nyquist rightly points to the need for more effective teaching about the law-particularly, as be might well have emphasized, the Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

But there is danger in placing too much faith in "values education" as an answer to social, political and economic corruption in the society at large. Over the years, the schools have regularly been asked to take responsibility for the prevention or cure of an almost unlimited variety of problems-Communism, drugs, alcohol, crime, etc .- with but limited success. Reliance on education unfortunately often serves as an excuse not to deal with the real causes of these problems in the world outside the school.

The most persuasive instruction of children and youths will not prevail against a society organized to invite or at least to condone profiteering, corruption, and political as well as civic dishonesty. The most diligent attention to public morality in the classrooms, desirable as it is. cannot prevail over acceptance of immorality in political backrooms and corporate boardrooms.

A New Consensus . . .

The Vietnam war and Watergate undermined the consensus that guided America's role in the world for more than two decades after World War II, bringing into doubt both the nation's foreign policy and its confidence in the President who must conduct it. Foreign policy and defense became critical issues in the 1972 Presidential campaign.

The outlook as the 1976 campaign gets under way is for a more muted debate on international affairs. A national consensus on foreign policy may be taking form again.

Despite differences on some issues and tactics, an underlying agreement on many fundamental principles is indicated by a study released last week by the Public Agenda Foundation, a monpartisan group that is seek-· ing. to clarify election issues. The foundation had indepth interviews with 70 foreign-policy professionals, including advisers both to Secretary Rissinger and former Governor Carter-then compared their views with those of 133 community leaders around the country and with national attitudes revealed in a number of detailed public opinion polls. It found basic support for the following policies:

• A strong defense posture, with the experts convinced that rough equivalence to the Soviet Union is not only sufficient but the maximum feasible, while a majority of the public would seek American military superiority;

· A strong commitment to the country's core allies in West Europe and Japan, not only in defense but as the economic and political base for managing the pressing prohlems confronting the industrial democracies and the rest of the world;

Cost-of-Living Raises: Windfall or Pittance On Abortion

To the Editor:

As a citizen I am disturbed by the spread of the cost-of-living adjustment (COLA), into labor unions and now into the salaries of judges, top officials of the executive branch and probably Congressmen.

Although benefiting from it myself as a military repres. I have become convinced that it is essentially a giveaway program which dispenses too much to those who don't need it and not enough to those who do.

The application of percentage increases in the Consumer Price Index (C.P.I.) across Federal pay scales, high and low, is an undeserved and excessive windfall for the above-average and an unfair pittance at the lower end.

A 5 percent increase in the C.P.I. would raise a Congressional salary by $186 a month, enough to pay for all groceries and basic needs, not just the inflationary extra, but would give the $150 Social Security beneficiary only $7.50, not even enough for one filling of the gas tank of his jalopy, if he owns one.

The fact is that the C.P.I. has a reverse relationship to salary level, and the tragedy is that when each is expressed in percentage it is easy to slide into the assumption that the more pay you get and spend, the more compensation you need to stay caught

This is nonsense! Who says the affluent need it?

What needs to be said, and loudly, is that any cost-of-living adjustment should be a flat rate across the board because the low end needs it and the

Of Medicaid and Organized Medicine

To the Editor.

The statement in your editorial of Aug. 31 on Medicaid abuse that organized medicine has failed to meet its "special responsibility to give support to administrative and legal actions -against unscrupulous practitioners" demands a response.

The fact is that "organized medicine" has no authority of any kind to discipline physicians. For years, the Medical Society of the State of New York has attempted to bave the state extend disciplinary powers to our society which would permit the medical profession to deal with proven miscréants. We have repeatedly and consistently condemned frauds and cheats, and encouraged their prosecution like any other individual who violates the law.

The deficiencies of the Medicaid system have been known but permitted to. continue for years, and organized medicine accepts no blame, for it has tried again and again to introduce corrective changes. Bureaucratic Momentum

Stildents of hureaucracy have long recognized the tendency of government programs to achieve nearimmortality regardless of changes in circumstance or the passage of time. Many such programs develop a set of vested interests quite independently of whether any objectively useful purpose is being served.

A-demonstration of this truism has just been provided in such an unlikely area as sport fisheries. The New York State Department of Environmental Conservation had its mind fixed on stocking Lake Ontario with salmon for sport fishermen and ultimately with building a $10 million fish hatchery on the lake. Many people living around Lake Ontario welcome anything that will attract sport fishermen, who are a substantial market for motel. rooms, restaurant meals, gasoline and car service, etc. The hatchery, if built, will give employment to local construction workers and then to a set of permanent employees. The sport fisbermen themselves constitute a formidable lobby.

But it so happens that Lake Ontario is badly polluted by a wide variety of chemicals, and that it is unwise to eat fish grown to maturity in its waters. It cannot be said that the Department of Environmental Conservation has been entirely unaware of this situation; some of its scientists have been trying frantically for some time to sound warnings. But nobody in authority was paying much attention.

Within the past few days, however, stories hy Richard Severo in The Times have highlighted the pollution of Lake Ontario and the potential health problems for those who eat the lake's fish. Now the department has canceled this fall's scheduled salmon-stocking program for Lake Ontario and has announced that it is taking another look at the idea of building a fish hatchery in the area. The incident shows that the almost irresistible momentum of a government program can be halted with sufficient bublic pressure-but it is rarely self-generated from intide the hureaucracy.

• A commitment to Israel's survival and a continued special relationship with Israel, along with efforts to achievera Middle East settlement;

• Sacrifices to achieve a coherent energy policy;

· Active American leadership in world_affairs and in seeking solutions to international problems; working multilaterally with other countries, hnt not placing too much reliance on the United Nations, especially its General Assembly.

... but Some Gaps

On some other issues, significant gaps exist between the foreign policy experts interviewed and the general public. Virtually all professionals favor urgent measures to limit soaring exports of arms for commercial as opposed to security-related purposes. The public is sharply divided.

Similarly, the experts are more concerned about nnclear proliferation, particularly commercial export of nuclear technology to non-nuclear powers.

Another gap between expert and the public perception is in the belief of the former that the United States must do much more to aid the developing countries and improve economic relationships with them generally while the public believes the United States is already doing its share.

Greatly increased Congressional involvement in the conduct of foreign affairs is favored by the public, but the professionals are sharply divided on this issue.

The public wants to put an end to a weakening American role in the world, while avoiding "another Vietnam." By "another Vietnam," the study shows, people mean direct military involvement in bttle-known countries where vital American interests are not engaged, just because the Communists are working the other side of the street. Angola evidently fits that description; Korea and Israel do not.

Overall, the Public Agenda Foundation concludes that the country has not turned isolationist and that the wounds of Vietnam have substantially healed. Americans in general appear to be more cautious, less idealistic and less ideological than the professionals, but, the foundation asserts, "they are just as ready to support an active, responsible, sacrifice-demanding foreign policy, if it can be demonstrated that the national interest will be served thereby."

The developing foreign policy-defense debate between President Ford and Jimmy Carter would do well to consider this a challenge and an agenda.

Quiet Issue

By William V. Shannon

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17-The protection of the environment is the quiet issue in this Presidential campaign, not stressed as yet by either Presidential candidate. But it is politically significant that the leadership of the environmental movement overwhelmingly supports Democrat Jimmy Car-

Some leaders such as Joe Browder, director of the Environmental Policy Center, and Stewart Brandborg, until recently the executive director of the Wilderness Society, support him openly. Others who head organizations that have to protect their tax-exempt status support him privately.

The origins of this political line-up are easy to discover. President Ford was in office nearly a year before he met with the leaders of the major environmental organizations. When he did meet with them, it was at the dedication of the National Environmental Resource Center in Cincipnati in July 1975, where he devoted his speech to developing the theme that is the pet hate of conservationists, namely, that there is an inherent conflict between a clean environment and a prosperous economy.

"I pursue the goal of clean air and water," Mr. Ford said, "but I must also pursue the objective of maximum jobs and continued economic progress. Unemployment is as real and as sickening a blight as any pollutant that threatens the nation

"If accomplishing every worthy environmental objective would slow down our effort to regain energy independence and a stronger economy, then of necessity I must weigh all factors involved," he added.

Mr. Carter has consistently taken the exactly opposite view. In his presentation to the Democratic Platform Committee in June, for example, he said: "I do not believe that there is an incompatibility between economic progress and environmental quality. We should not be diverted from our cause by false claims that the protection of our ecology and wildlife means an end to growth and a decline, in jobs. This is not the case."

In expounding his position, Mr. Carter has frequently said: "I want to make it clear if there is ever a conflict, I will go for beauty, clean air, water and landscape."

The clash in their basic philosophies emerges on almost every specific environmental issue, Mr. Carter has endorsed the concept-embodied in Dem-ocratic-sponsored hills in Congressof providing Federal grants to encourage states to develop plans for the better use of land. President Ford has said, "I am opposed to it, period." The President has urged extensive revision of the Clean Air Act to delay the deadlines on automobile emission controls and to permit greater use of coal. He has expressed the view that the law "unnecessarily discourages greater coal production." By contrast, Mr. Carter told the platform committee that Congress should "hold fast against efforts to lower clean air requirements."

In an interview in May, Mr. Carter told Business Week that although he disagreed with two provisions of the strip-mining bill passed by Congress, he would have signed it. President Ford has vetoed the bill twice. Similarly, the President has hinted that he might veto the toxic substances bill if it contains stringent controls on industrial chemicals. Several days ago, Mr. Carter urged enactment. of strict controls.

The Ford Administration bas aggressively urged the rapid dev ment of nuclear energy. The Den cratic nominee, who once worked for Admiral Rickover in the Navy's m clear program, has urged caution in such development. He has urged offor. example, that funding of the fast breeder reactor be "severely reduced."

In a statement on energy, Mr. Catter, declared, "unless we conserve energy drastically, make a shift to coal, and substantially increase our use of solars energy, we will have no alternative: to greatly increased dependence on clear power. As one who is lating nu mately familiar with the problems and potential of nuclear energy, I believe ve must make every effort to keep that dependence to a minimum." Mr. Carter has also captured the interest of conservationists because as Governor of Georgia he blocked a dam, proposed by the Army Corps of Engineers on a free-flowing river, and he opposed "stream channelization" proj ects urged by the Soil Conservation Service-two initiatives not usually undertaken by governors.

No one can predict with certainty how individual conservationists will vote. They are a quirky, independent breed. But in the last dozen year they have proved that environmentalism is not an elitist movement or a passing fad of the young. On the convin trary, it is one of the few big popular movements that continues to enlist volunteers, excite idealism and evoke steadfast, unselfish commitment. Moreover, its appeal transcends normal divisions between young and old, rich and working class, city and countryside, scientist and layman.

Environmentalists have become battle-tested and politically sophisticated in many hard local and national fights. Because they exist in every region and virtually every community, they could prove to be a potent if little-noticed ... force in determining the outcome of. this election.

As long as I can remember I have felt that it was necessary to shout about such matters. This I've done in all the worlds I've lived in since 1932, though to be sure not as loudly and often in some as in others."

My domain throughout these years and careers has been that of ideas and policies. To many, including even some in the class of 1932, this has not seemed as worthy a domain as that of making and selling, getting and spending. I won't try to justify thinking and writing and public expostulation as manly activities, merely that they arethe only method I could think of if I was going to spend a lot of my life in an assault on privilege and power.

This is what I have done, in any case, and in the process have dealt in more or less drawn-out campaigns, sometimes, as a soloist, sometimes as a member of a like-minded group, with such subjects as:

Technology, which I believe is the modern version of original sin, tempting us beyond the limits of moral judgment and intelligence.

Roce, which I consider (along with most of the other issues that absorb me) to be an unanswerable problem; specifically that integration in the United States is unrealizable because it is a pious myth and not a deeply held wish of the great majority of Americans whether white or black.

Nuclear arms, and here I believe. with Lewis Mumford that our policymakers are literally mad, that we consent to their madness, and that their madness is making the destruction of our grandchildren and their world an odds-on proposition-a near-certainty. -So I argue for unilateral disarmament. If we cannot prevent the slaughter of our own grandchildren by nuclear weapons-though I know of no reason why they should be slaughtered at least we need not be guilty of the slaughter of millions of other children. and men and women too.

The great corporations, meaning those measureless monsters astride everyone's worlds, here and elsewhere, which I think need to be summarily brought under public management or broken into little ones.

Exposure of the F.B.L and its former czar as mefficient, vastly overrated, and dangerous to the civil rights of Americans. As with the preceding issues, this campaign found little favor igh the populace and for many years. But now the country is beginning to understand what I and expression-would go a a few others were carrying on about, as one iniquitous and illegal F.B.L undertaking after another appears on the front page.

If pressed, I shall expand later on good luck, the topic that Dante couldn't understand either, and which has fallen in immensely disproportionate amounts on my shoulders. The worlds I've lived nouth 1932 I saw private in, while full of sour subjects, have ing triumphantly with nonetheless been full of good fortane y. HOOD'S PILLS cure Constipation by restoring the peristaltic action of the alimentary canal.

In literature antedating modern medical care, one senses the patient's resigned attitude toward illness, the expectation of some suffering, and the gratitude to God (and occasionally the physician) when recovery, albeit with persistent symptoms, occurred. These days, one might infor from a patient's attitude that failure to render an immediate cure reflects the doctor's ignorance of treatment and that any adverse surgical effects result from butchery.

Physicians' reassurances of cures, medical articles in lay publications, and publicity given preliminary re-ports of medical "breakthroughs" all contribute to the layman's expectation of recovery from disease. .

Not only do patients expect to be cured of their diseases, but one may reasonably conclude that many people helieve they have a "right to health," which is perhaps but an extension of the concept that one is entitled to food, housing, clothing and health care. This attitude is manifested by often unscientific efforts to prevent disease, failure to acknowledge disease when present, refusal to endure symptoms, refusal of treatment, and the demand for a "perfect" body.

Most laymen believe that vitamins will assure good health by preventing illness, or at least promote a sense of well-being. (I have long felt that the German scientist Casimir Funk opened a Pandora's box by combining "vital" and "amine" into "vitamin." I suspect that "aminovites" would be far less popular than "vitamins," which imply vitality.)

Healthy, well-fed individuals take unnecessary iron supplements in the hope of preventing illness and any sense of ill health. Copper bracelets are worn by individuals even without symptoms of arthritis. Fad diets and bizarre exercises are undertaken m the expectation of improved health. The annual physical examination is taken not to discover occult disease but to confirm one's good health.

While I sympathize with these and other, often futile, attempts to prevent disease, I have less patience with the refusal of patients to accept the limitations of medical care,

It is bard to believe that any American adult does not know that the common cold may be expected to last a week or two. Nevertheless, patients return after a thorough examination complaining that their cold persists. The patient with a sprained ankle expects instantaneous and permanent relief from pain as does the patient with gastroenteritis caused by dietary indiscretion. Patients even expect medication to assuage the grief following the death of a loved one. Many patients refuse to acknowledge that they have an asymptomatic disease. Medical journals are rife with reports of patients whose failure to continue treatment for such chronic, asymptomatic conditions as their denial of disease. ... Most physicians will confirm patients' subsequent denial of advice or information given during an office visit. A recent study reported that patients signing an informed consent for cardiac surgery remembered only 29 percent of the possible adverse reactions. Physicians are aware that many patients who become asymptomatic fail to continue medications (especially antibiotics) for the prescribed period.

diabetes and hypertension attest to

Despite sound medical advice to the contrary, or warnings of possible complications and failure to give relief, some patients prefer to "eliminate" some medical problems by undergoing surgery rather than to experience any illness treated by medication, or to live with evidence that they are not in perfect health.

I cannot help but feel that the refusal of individuals to acknowledge the limitations of medicine and the probability of some suffering from an illness or accident accounts in large measure for the increasing frequency and cost of medical care and malpractice claims.

While medicine and surgery have made major advances in this century, patients must accept the inevitability of disease, some disability and death.

Velvet Ghettos

By Frances Lear

LOS ANGELES - The submergence of the Federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission under tons of bureaucratic Bumbledom has left women and ethnic minorities without an operative enforcement agency in the work place

In earlier days, lawsuits with this troubled agency as co-plaintiff, against companies with discriminatory hiring and promotion practices brought some results. Not nearly enough, to be sure, .and sometimes threats of such suits were totally ignored.

I sat in the chrome and shockingblue office of an oil-company vice president who confided in me, "The E.E.O.C. is going to bring a big Title VII sex discrimination case against one of the oil companies. Hell, it could even be us."

Hell! The E.E.O.C. didn't alarm enough companies enough, but it did give women and minorities some clout as well as a focus for their grievances. The hiring process for these men and women not only continues to be discriminatory, but now there is a new variety of discrimination applied to them after being hired.

A black woman, a semicelebrity, told me that she had a new job with a giant corporation. "Good, tell me about it."

"I have a wonderful opportunity to work in ways that are important to me.'

"What department?"

"Public affairs," "Oh."

Public affairs is evolving into a woman's ghetto. So are equal employment opportunity departments, but this ghetto includes men as well. Men and women divide affirmative-action positions between them, although minority men have begun to take a commanding lead. Virtually all jobs held by women and minorities are in "ghettos." An especially pervasivs ghetto exists in retailing.

At one time, women were authorized to write huge orders for merchandise. With their "big pencils," they were queens of the hill! Not so today. Today, merchandise men are usurping the buyers' turf, thereby turning this generation of buyers into powerless order-takers.

The oldest, biggest and most debilitating ghetto of them all is secretarial, and even though this ghetto has undergone some remodeling it remains escape-proof.

When numbers of secretaries were promoted to "administrative assistants" in the early 1970's in an attempt to adhere to equal-employment laws, the ghetto did not open a door and let some women out; it merely expanded in order to bouse the new administrative assistants who had 27 1.24 34. 1.1.1.2. 115. Lately, as a result of moustry's need. bright women and minorities have been let in as economists or certified public"" accountants or financial analysis; rarely are they corporate controllers or, rarer still, vice presidents and treasurers. Men put money manage-ment in the hands of gifted women who, because they have no other option, allow the real decision-making to be done by men.

Increasingly, I have become aware of still another ghetto. It is the cushiest one of all and belongs to a mere handful of women superstars whose careers are champloned by presidents or chairmen of the board-a customary business practice, heretofore reserved for men. Each woman enjoys a.....

I am not suggesting that any prest: dent or chairman of the board is knowingly putting his star into a ghetto But that is exactly what is happening." Men, in similar positions of favor, "go" into line management where corporate . princes are crowned.

Fully half of the top corporate women in America are in communications/public and consumer affairs and in it finance/money management. While it.... is relatively easy to understand the former, the reason why they go into finance bears re-examining. Is it the land of golden opportunity it is perceived to be, or has the financial com-sum munity developed a system of discrimination that lets in the talents of women while continuing to deny them any real power?

This negative viewpoint of opportunity in the workplace may be difficult for successful professional womenand minority friends to accept; it takes time for people in velvet ghettos to know they are there. Unfortunately, the proliferation of corporate ghettos, with their built-in inequities and fresh!" stereotypes, won't wait.

While some scientists at the meeting, including several being supported by in-dustry grants, continued to challenge the seriousness of ozone depletion and asked for further studies, Mr. Talley said: "We just cannot postpone decisions on these problems indefinitely in the hope that better data may be available in the indefi-nite future."

David Pittle, a commissioner of the United States Consumer Product Safety Commission, spoke in far stronger terms. He said that restrictions on fluorocarbon use should have been imposed after the Interagency Task Force on Inadverten Modification of the Stratosphere suggest ed such a ban in June 1975. The task force had been formed at the initiative of Dr. Peterson and Dr. Guyford Stever, theo head of the National Science Foundation.

Mr. Pittle said that when the Natural Resources Defense Council petitiooed the Consumer Product Safety Commission for similar restrictions he supported the proposal but was outvoted by other mem-bers. While he praised the scientific as-pects of last Mouday's voluminous report by the academy he deplored its recom-mendation for another two years of data collection, arguing that enough evidence to justify regulation was already in hand when the Federal Task Force Report was assued in June 1975.

Intorocarbons are not justification for delay, he said. "Chemicals are not innocent until proven guilty," he said. He also proposed that substitutes be sought for the fluoro-carbons used in refrigerator systems. Jurisdiction Not Centered

Part of the regulation problem, as noted by both Mr. Pittle and Mr. Talley, is that no agency has hed jurisdiction over all uses of fluorocarbons. E.P.A.'s concern has been limited to pesticide dispensers. The Consumer Product Safety Commission controls fluorocarbons used as re-frigerants in home refrigerators but not in automobile air-conditioners. The Food emission. With regard to the necessity for inter-national action, Mr. Talley pointed out that the United States produces only 38 percent of the fluorocarbons most widely used as propellants and refrigerants. They are often referred to as Freon 11 and Freon 12.

Most of the remainder is produced by other industrialized nations belooging to the Organization for Economic Coopera-tion and Development, accounting (with the United States) for 89 percent of world aroduction production.

Robert J. Reichert of Du Pont said that in view of current research on fluorocar-bon substitutes his company was "guard-edly confident" it could cope with regulation if it came to pass.

ien Stablehands Bring nge to Belmont's Barns

ATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1976

An hour earlier, fumbling for the alarm clock in her suburban home at 4 A.M., she had thought to herself, Corinne, you have to be crazy."

Why would anyone, especially a teen-ager qualified for college, want to get up this early in the morning to take care of a bunch of horses that couldn't even say thank you?

While ber parents slept, she would prepare a lonely breakfast of cold cereal, toast, orange juice and coffee, then drive to the race track for a lowpaying "slave's" job that some days could keep her tied down until 6 or 7 o'clock at night. Yes, she had thought, he must be crazy.

But now, swinging her pale-orange 1973 Capri through the Beimont Park stable area in Elmont, L.L., 18-year-old Corinne Hillery was feeling better. Even though the barns and the trees were still just dim shapes in the predawn darkness, she knew her job made sense.

"You see the sun coming up," she would say later. "You hear the horses would say later. You near the norses out on the track galloping, and the rustle of straw in the stalls. You see everybody working, one big family, so you know you can't be crazy."

A Changing Family

In basic ways, the family's work hasn't changed at all: horses to be fed, watered, groomed, taken out to the track for a jog or a gallop, washed, walked, grazed, comforted, put back into clean stalls. In the leafy, 100-acre Behmont backstortch with its 63 barne Belmont backstretch, with its 63 barns and its roadway, signs that warn, "Horses Have the Right of Way," the kined hands take care of 2,300

Hurricane Leaves Trees Confused About Seasons

By GEORGE VECSEY Special to The New York Time

EAST MORICHES, L.I.-Most trees have a pretty good idea of what they should be doing and when they should be doing it.

But here in the eastern part of Suffolk County and in sections of Connecticut, Hurricane Belle has set off a raging confusion among the as-sorted maples and hemlocks, apple and peach trees. Many of them half believe it is late fall, and half believe it is early spring, to the extent that there are hish red fruit and gorgeous pink blossoms on many an apple tree. "They've been faked right out," Tom

Corell, the county extension agent in charge of trees, said. The problem, which could be quite costly to professional nursery men in case of an early frost, is traced directly to the hurricane's rampage across Long Island late on Aug. 9, For some strange meteorological reason, the storm kicked up a selfy sea spray coming from the south, then forgot to leave a cleansing rain in its aftermath.

Salt Particles on Trees

The salt particles coated the south side of trees from the Moriches north to Miller Place, all the way east to the North and South Forks, and remained there when the hurricane left for New England.

"The next day was warm and sunny, and some farmers were calling me up to say they escaped injury," recalled Larry Bertholf, president of the Long Island Farm Bureau, "But then the sun went to work on those salt particles." Salt is harmful to plant cells, causing leaves to turn brown on the south side the past month has given false ideas to the poor trees. It might as well be spring, they have reasoned, and so they have gone to work growing new huds, new leaves, new blossoms.

"They were storing food for winter when the hurricane hit," Mr. Corell said, "Then, instead of storing reserves, they used them to put out new leaves. Many leaves have missed the signal of shorter days and dont' know that is time to harden up for winter."

Some Have Bounced Back

The same is true in a 50-mile swath of Connecticut, from Lyme to Guilford, where the salt spray has confused lilacs and forsythias into blossoming four months late (or eight months early). The results are dramatic here in the Moriches, a rural region facing the Great South Bay. It has very little of the studied New England appearance of the nearby Hamptons but rather has the unstudied character of picturesque southern Indiana, with graveyards, quiet crossroads and interesting homes and barns.

The results are dramatic at nurseries like Henry Eberhardt's on Pine Street, where crimson king maples are a spring-like red; sycamores are flashing bright April-green leaves, and the copthardt, who has 32 acres of a fruit nursery a mile farther south from Mr. Eberhardt, "Sometimes I don't get frost until November. That would give the trees two months to restore their food. But even so, 1 know 1 won't get new buds on 50 percent of these branches next spring. That can be the margin of profit right there, if I can't sell

While damage to trees on private homes was considerable, most homeowners had their branches trimmed and raked their lawns, and long-range problems are minimal. But for the nursery men, the damage could be serious. Mr. Eberhardt said he suffered inestimable damage to thick green hemlocks, whose south exposures still show barren brown branches.

bright spring time copper tone. .Even though these trees seem to have bounced back from the salt damage, they are actually in jeopardy as the real fail approaches.

"The branches are in a succulent condition now," Mr. Corell said. "They are very susceptible to a freeze. A frost might not kill them outright, but it would hurt them."

Mr. Corell said frosts have been known to occur as early as mid-September in low-lying sections more than a few miles from the ocean, such as in Mr. Eberhardt's 200 acres scattered around Sunrise Highway. "I may get hucky, says Henry Leu-pers, squash, tomatoes and beans fered either from the heavy winds or the salt damage. One farmer in this village was set to pick 60 acres of beans on Ang. 9, the day the heavy rains preceded to hit the Island. The next day, most of his beans had been uprooted

No part of Connecticut has been declared a Federal disaster area because the damage was not judged sufficient. The worst problems were "tip-outs" of large trees coming loose because of the rain-soaked ground and high winds.

Asked whether the fund was optimistic about a renewal of employers' right to have contributions to the fund treated as business costs not subject to tax, a fund spokesman said, "We'd better be optimistic or we're out of business."

Adviser on Mortgage Loans .

As further evidence of his resolve to clean up malpractices, Mr. Fitzsimmons said the fund had retained the Trammell Crow Company, a Dallas-based real estate concern with extensive holdings in 40 American cities and six foreign countries as adviser on the fund's multimillioo-dollar investments in mortgage Ioans

Much of the money is in hotels, gambling casinos and other properties in Las Vegas, Miami Beach and other pleasure spots. Allegations of illegal payments, de-faults and gangland ties have been frequent in connection with many of these acquisitions.

"I would be the last not to say that some of the fund's past practices were not above reproach to some degree," said Mr. Fitzsimmons, e past master in circumlocution. "But sometimes people inerit things. If you look at the change being made today, it will eliminate all of the so-called criticism."

He declared that the fund hed distribut-ed $1.25 billion in benefits to pensioners since 1957. There are currently 70,000 on the rolls and monthly payments come to $20 million, he said. As for losses on investments, he chided the press for not comparing its loss ratios with those of ailing real estate investment trusts "or even the Chase Manhattan Bank."

Finds Record Is Better

"You'll find our record is a lot better than theirs," he said.

In line with the new Fitzsimmons opendoor policy, the fund plans to make public in mid-October a full list of its loans together with details on delinquencies. It will be a rather large purgative, said a spokesman,

The clear indications that Mr. Fitzsimmons had twisted Mr. Presser's arm to oust him from the pension fund board raised the question of Mr. Presser's continoed role as a teamster vice-president and area chief. Mr. Fitzsimmons declined to discuss whether Mr. Presser would be expected to relinquish all his posts of power, hut other sources indicated a strong possibility that the Cleveland leader would be under intense pressure to retire at the next executive board meeting the first week of October in Los Angeles.

At the teamster convection in Las Vegas in June, where Mr. Fitzsimmons told his administration's internal critics to "go to hell," the two leaders exchanged warm tributes in seconding one another's nominations for new five-year terms.

Mr. Fitzsimmons described Mr. Presse as "one of the greatest men 1 have ever known in my life." The Ohioan saluted Mr. Fitzsimmons as "one of the truly great men of the American labor movement."

thoroughbreds. Pay scales are low, because the stablehands are still the serfs in racing's feudalistic structure. But if the family's work has remained the same, the family itself bas changed dramatically. And Corinne Hillery, fresh out of North Babylon (L.L.) High School, reflects a major part of that change.

With her blue jeans, flowered silk hlouse and shoulder-length blonde hair, Corinne represents a new hreed of race-track stablehand. Inspired by equal-rights progress, the emergence of women jockeys and a shortage of dedi-cated stablehands, growing numbers of young women are finding fulfillment as grooms, hot-walkers and exercise riders. Many of them, like Corinne, went to the race-track with riding-academy or horse-show experience.

In the last five years, the trend has accelerated to the point where nearly 25 percent of the 2,000 stablehands at Belmont Park now are women. At the same time, the number of blacks has declined to about a fourth, and Spanishspeaking help has increased to about 40 percent.

. A Labor Issue

Most race-trackers agree the femi-nine touch has had a beneficial effect on backstretch life. Trainers often find the newcomers more conscientious about their jobs, more devoted to the horses. Yet there are those who fear that the women, particularly the younger ones with few financial re-ponsibilities, are undercutting efforts by two labor unions to organize the stablehands

"Maybe the unioo would be good," Corinne Hillery said as she cleaned the stall occupied by a 3-year-old gelding named Private Practice. "But my girlfriends and I are bappy the way things are now. We're happy just to be on the track, happy to be with horses."

Corinne works at Barn 8, where Private Practice and 10 other horses owned by Alfred G. Vanderbilt, a former chairman of the New York Rac-ing Association, are stabled. Their regular rider is Robyn Smith, the nation's best woman jockey, and their names reflect the thought and whimsy their owner puts into this chore. Private Practice, for example, is by Dr. Fager out of Scarlet Letter, His novice groom, Corinne, earns about $120 a week before taxes. Like all stablehands, she is paid not by the owner whose horses she pampers hut by the man who trains these borses, in this case Bobby Lake. Most New York trainers receive about $30 a day per horse from the owners, a rate the trainers say does not cover the cost of feed, stable belp, transportation and other expenses. Oats cost $11 a bag these days, double what they cost a few years ago, and hay goes for $150 to $160 a ton. Most bot-walkers, the people who lead horses around the barn to cool them after they exercise, get from $90 to $100 a week. Grooms can earn $135 or more, exercise riders $150 to $175. To make a profit, trainers say, they must count on the 10 percent cut they get from purses earned by the horses in their barns.

But this argument has been challenged by representatives of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and the International Union of Dolls, Toys, Playthings and Allied Products. A numof stablehands have joined the challenge.

"The trainers are saving money on these girls," said Donald Bentley, a 25-year-old exercise rider in another barn. "The hlack guys are getting cut out of jobs because the girls are willing to work for almost nothing. I like horses, too, but I get $135 a week now after 10 years in racing."

An older hlack man, a middle-aged groom who asked that his name not be used, called the backstretch situation a "circus" whose members often earn less than welfare recipients.

"If there's anything to put excite-ment in your blood," he said, "it's a race horse. But these people will play on the average sucker back here. The trainer gets 10 percent; the jockey gets 10 percent. The only percentage a groom gets is a percentage of more work."

'You Got to Like Horses'

Yet many stablehands, men as wall as women, feel that the insulated world of the backstretch, with its kaleido-scope of life styles, can never be organized, that a price tag can never be put on the work.

You got to like horses," said Buster Bruder, a 70-year-old exercise rider in the same Vanderbilt barn for which Corinne Hillery works. "If you're just-out for a paycheck, you might as well he in an office. With horses, your day never ends" never ends."

Buster's tangle of gray hair sprouts roosterlike atop his 5-foot-2-inch frame, and the chesty little man sometimes has to say "Hmmph?" when his hear-ing fails. But a lifetime of controlling half-ton horses who can hit 40 miles an hour has given him thick arms and a weight lifter's biceps that bulge from the sleeves of his white T-shirt. Fifty-one years ago, he was the regular exercise boy for a Kentucky Derby winner named Flying Ebony. He still gallops five or six horses a day, and noms another

By 8:30 A.M., while commuter traffic moved along the highways toward the city, Buster, Corinne and the other stablehands in Barn 8 were entering the homestretch of their morning routine. Another hour or two, and the work would be done. There would be time then for a leisurely visit to the backstretch cafeteria, where a sign on the wall reminds stablehands: "Eat your betting money, but never bet your eating money.

Outside the barn, a pet pig named Petunia gave one of the stable mongreis a playful nudge on the shoulder with her snout. When the dog agreed to play. Petmia swing her bead from side to side and chased him, her curly tail wagging like a puppy's.

15-STATE STRIKE HITS UNITED PARCEL SERVICE

But New York City, Westchester County and Long Island are not affected by the strike since a contract covering United Parcel workers in those grees does not expire until June 30, 1977.

Department stores in the affected states were reported urging patrons to carry home their own packages, and other shippers were turning to parcel post or spe-cial trucking services for delivery of packages.

On a normal day, the United Parcel spokesman said, about 80,000 shippera, mostly business concerns, send 1.6 million packages by United Parcel to 800,000 other companies or individuals in the 15 states affected by the strike.

These states in which service has been halted, he said, are South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jers-ware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jers-chusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire, Maine, and New York except for New York City, Long Island and Westchester County. Built of Scottish oak to Mr. Carnegie's specifications, the desk remained in the philanthropist's sealed-off study even after the building became Columbia University's School of Social Work in the late 1940's. Until yesterday, it had not been moved from Mr. Carnegie's study.

2 Get 3 Years' Probation In Suspected Try on Life Of Hirohito in New York

A Chinese couple linked with a possible assassination attempt on the life of Em-peror Hirohito of Japan during his visit to New York City last Oct. 4 were sentenced to three years' probation yester-day for failure to register a rifle transported from California to New York.

Ethan Levin-Epstein, the assistant Unit-ed States Attoroey who prosecuted the case, said that the Government did not submit charges of complicity io a plot on the Emperor's life because "to go for-ward at this time would compromise comward at this time would compromise con-fidential sources." But he said there was "a reasonable probability" that such a plot existed.

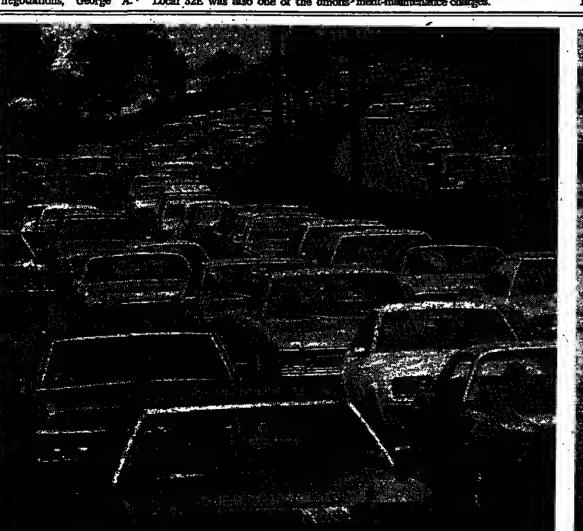

In pronouncing sentence after hearing nearly two hours of argument. Chief Judge Jacob Mishler of Federal Court in Brooklyn said that since no formal charges had been made in connection with an assassination plot, he would sentence the couple only on the basis of "an act of failure to register guns."

Two Witnesses Refuse to Testify

But repeatedly expressing his suspicions that Kenneth Raymond Chin, 28 years old, and his wife, Elizabeth, 31, may have heen part of a wider conspiracy, Judge Mishler said, "Had I enough to show me

The judge emphasized that bis suspi-cions had been fanned by the refusal of two Government witnesses to testify. The witnesses, Michael Yanagita and Marc kondo, both Japanese-Americans, bad cited their Fifth Amendment rights, say-ing their testimony could involve them in a plot to kill Emperor Hirohito. During two days of receot public hear-ings, the Senate Foreign Relations sub-committee on multinational corporations developed testimony showing that Grumman salesmen in Iran had been actively promoting the F-14 for two years before the 1972 Nixon decision. The testimony suggested that Grumman might have been responsible for creating a desire on the part of the Shah and his advisers for the aircraft.

Iran Largest Buyer

Iran quickly emerged as the largest single purchaser of American military goods, buying $10.4 billion worth be-tween 1972 and 1976, and creating what many foreign-policy critics have de-scribed as an arms race in the Persian Gulf.

For Senator Frank Church, Democrat of Idaho who is chairman of the multinational subcommittee, the key element behind such an arms race was Grum-man's decision to begin its F-14 sales operations in Iran before the United States Government had decided it was in the national interest for the advanced aircraft to be sold to a foreign ally.

This company went to great lengths to interest the Iranian Government in this aircraft," Mr. Church said in an interview "knowing that clearance for its sale to a foreign government had not been authorized

Most economists do agree at least that these shifts could not occur easily and that if the United States is to keep abreast of technological innovations and meet the new demands of pollution con-trol and greater energy independence, the current rate of savings must increase.

Widely Supported Goals

A study prepared by the Bureau of Eco-nomic Analysis of the Commerce Depart-ment, under the direction of Beatrice N. Vaccara, indicates that in order to assure an adequate supply of capital by 1980 to meet these widely supported economic goals, savings will have to average 12 percent of the G.N.P. between 1974 and 1980, compared with the bistorical level of 10.5 percent. Yet, in 1975, Mrs. Vaccara said, savings amounted to only 9.6 percent constant-dollar G.N.P., and the 1976 rate will probably he similar. Moreover, as Barry Bosworth of the Jewels commonly made for adornment are designed to reflect maximum light, but when worn by television actors these cause an intense concentration of light on the tube. Eugene F. Pereda of Albuquerque, N.M., has designed nonreflecting jewels that he says television actors can wear with

Personal Finance Power of Attorney Is Useful Device

By LEONARD SLOANE

There is an important document that many people know about but relatively ftw heve signed. Yet it can be a useful device for individuals in e wide variety of circumstances.

This tool is called e power of ettorney, which is essentially an instrument that gives one or more persons the right and authority to act for another. It is, furthermore, e legal contract establishing a principal-agent relation-ship and granting authority to someone else to act on your behalf if you are unable or unwilling to do so.

In most cases, a power of ettorney issued by a consumer is prepared on a gentral basis for all contingencies. But io others, it is granted for a special limited purpose only.

One such example could be the power to sell securities or rtal estate. A sec-ond is the right to enter e safe deposit box that belongs to another person. A power of attorney could also be granted permitting a designee to issue checks or make withdrawals from a bank account in your name.

Although this power-which techni-cally appoints someone else as your attorney-in-fact even though he does not have to be a lawyer—can be given at any time, there are particular occa-sions when it might be especially advisable. For instance, anyone who is preparing to enter or who has already entered a hospital, or nursing home because of a lengthy illness or serious operation abould consider signing a power of attorney.

Similarly, men and women planning an extended vacation in which they will be out of touch with their business activities could execute such a power. Even those called for an audit by the Internal Revenue Service who want to he represented by an accountant must first prepare a power of attorney.

In deciding who sets power of attorney, the key consideration is often confidence in the judgment and integrity of the party concerned. Married cou-ples normally designate each other, while single people frequently select a member of their family. Others sometimes named are a trusted lawyer, ac-countant or banker-but whoever is chosen should, of course, be asked in advance to obtain permission. Whoever issues a power of ettorney should be aware that this type of document is construed strictly by the courts. The powers not mentioned will generally not be implied. Therefore, it is important to carefully list the powers you want the other person to have, so he can properly carry out your wishes.

In eddition, there is always the possibility that third parties may be hesitant to deal with those holding a power of attorney because of doubts about its authenticity. A real estate hroker once insisted on talking on the telephone to the owner of property he was about to purchase—although the owner had issued e general power of attorney and was vacationing in Europe.

Powers of attorney are automatically voided when the issuer dies and, in some states, when he loses his legal capacity to act for himself. But in New York, the law was amended last year to continue the power, even though the individual who draws it up later be-comes disabled or incompetent.

Samuel J. Bazil, of the law firm of Kaye, Scholer, Fierman, Hays & Han-dier, noted, bowever, "This authority to continue, under the circumstances of disability or incompeteoce, must be specifically granted. Otherwise the power of attorney would automatically become ineffective upon the subse-quent disability or incompetence of the principal, as would be the case in the event of death."

Standard power-of-attorney forms can be purchased et stationery and office supply stores and completed by the issuer. For complex situations, a lawyer could offer valuable assistance and prepare a tailor-made document. The power, moreover, should probably be notarized before it is filed in a safe

A power of attorney can be revoked whenever necessary.

Liability Insurance

For Sales at Home

With the growing popularity of yard, garage and basement sales, it makes sense for prospective bolders of such sales to know whether they have adequate liability insurance coverage. Homeowner policies do not automatically cover all losses and liability claims from this kind of activity, since the nature of the sale is the determining factor.

A one-time yard sale is normally covered because it is an activity related to home life, according to the Insurance Information Institute. But if such a sale is held on a regular, profit-making basis, general liability insur-ance to cover a business pursuit should be considered.

Neighborhood yard sales may not be covered by homeowners' insurance. moreover, if the homeowner retains a substantial amount from the sale. All of the items contributed by neighbors from property coverage. Furthermore, the standard bomeown-er's policy in effect in most states does not cover property loss incurred at a yard sale. Nor does it provide protection at a flea market held on another property since coverage is restricted to the insured's resident premises.

Nest Egg Can Linger

With Prudent Timing No "nest egg" for retirement or other purposes will remain uncracked forever if part of these funds ere withdrawn periodically for living ex-penses. The two major considerations in determining bow long the money will last are the amount of withdrawals each year or month and the annual rate of return provided by the funds. Bankers Research Inc. of Westport, Coon., has a chart in its Tax Sense publication showing how many years $100,000 will last under different yield conditions if a portion is drawn out continions if a portion is drawn out in equal amounts monthly. The same timing will occur, of course, regardless of the savings total. For example, if $667 is withdrawn monthly (or $$,000 a year), the savings will last for almost 20 years at a yield of 5 percent and almost 30 years at 7 percent. If $833 is withdrawn monthly 7 percent. If $833 is withdrawn monthly (or $10,000 a year), the corresponding periods are almost 14 years at 5 per-cent and more than 17 years at 7 percent. And if $1,250 is withdrawn monthly (or $15,000 e year), the time periods are over 8 years at 5 percent and 9 years at 7 percent.

These figures do not consider the possibility of market fluctuation and therefore should be used with caution if all or some of the nest egg is in securities or other assets whose price is variable. But they can be used safely when the money is Government-in-sured savings accounts or time certifi-cates.

Following is the text of Mr. Conrad's statement to the RCA board of directors.

I have taken corrective action with respect to matters of personal tax which affect me. By way of back-ground, in the years 1971 through 1975 and indeed today, there were very large-withholdings of Federal tax on my income from RCA. The filing of late tax returns for these years with the Internal Revenue Service at this time has resulted in a showing of over-payments of tax in three years and relatively small deficiencies, in two years. In the years 1971 through 1975, my total Federal income tax obligations was $704,292, of which $684,618 had been paid on a current basis by me through payroll deductions. The net defiency of $19,674, together with in-terest of $1,429, was also been paid after adjustments for overpayments in the several years. Similar action was taken with respect to state and jocal taken with respect to state and local returns which have been filed and taxes thereon paid with interest. The latter remittance of taxes, however, represented greater amounts as a consequence of small witholding by the

In view of published reports of other companies concerning improper trans-actions such as payments, contributions or receipts of money and other items of value, I wish to emphasize that these do not in any way relate to me. I have neither given or received im-proper payments of any kind at any time.

None of my actions in relation to my personal tax returns and tax pay-ments is in any way related to or re-sulting from any business of the corporation. To the best of my knowledge, I know not no impropriety by the cor-poration arising from anything I did or failed to do, the business of the corporation is in no way involved nor is the accuracy of the books and rec-ords of the corporation in any way affected.

To the best of my knowledge, no facts concerning the late filing of re-turns and payment of my personal income taxes were previously communicated by me or known to any di-rector, officer or employee of the corporation.

Data Suppression and Influence by Industry Charged in the House-Agency Admits Some Errors

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 (UPI)-While the Federal Energy Administration was warning Americans of severe shortages of natural gas last winter, it had word from some experts the shortages would from some experts the shortages would be "small and manageable," Representa-tive John D. Dingell, contended today.

The Michigan Democrat said the agency publicized the crisis aspect and sup-pressed information that contradicted it. His staff called the situation a "mini-Watergate" involving destroyed files, industry influence on the F.L.A. and possibly illegal lobbying. The agency's deputy administrator, John A. Hill, told the House subcommittee on energy and power, which is headed by Mr. Dingell, that the F.E.A. made some mistakes in its handling of the situation. But he denied that its actions amounted to a "mini-Watergate."

Two Pamphlets in Controversy

The controversy surrounds two pamph-lets prepared for the F.E.A.: "The Na-tural Gas Story" and "The Natural Gas Shortage."

The subcommittee's staff contended that the agency let the American Gas Association edit the first pamphlet and let a contract to print the second in a way that seemed a violation of lobbying

He added: "The report said, 'Curtailments [of gas]

are likely to have small and manageable disruptive effects on those regional and state economies experiencing normal winters.' The report was suppressed.". The staff contended, in a memorandum to Mr. Dingell, that some people in the F.E.A. destroyed files and withheld others from the subcommittee, which had been considering legislation to change Federal controls on the prices of natural gas. 'Appeals to Violate' Laws

The memorandum said the "Natural Gas Shortage" pamphlet content "appears to violate the antilobbying laws."

Mr. Hill conceded that the first pamphlet, "The Natural aGs Story," had been submitted to a review by the American Gas Association.

The F.E.A. review process "was admit-tedly misminaged and [the pamphlet's] review by the A.G.A. was clearly im-proper." Mr. Hill the F.E.A.'s administrator saidy at today's hearing.

Award for Briquettes

More than a score of Soviet citizens —an unusually large number of co-in-ventors —were granted a patent this week on a device for making briquettes of loose materials, including steel fragments.

Patent 3,980,413 was awarded to Vadim G. Kononenko and 23 others, one of whom is deceased and represen-ed by his administratriz, Ganna F. Zakirova. The equipment includes an explosion chamber, an anvil and a plunger that pushes out a finished bri-quette.

According to a company source, the combined features of very accurate, high-speed and large-volume counting and handling of tablets have not been available in previous apparati. The traditional procedure for bulk tablet counting has been by weight measurement, relatively inadequate for high accuracy and speed and large volume.

Tablet-producing machines at the Roche facility have now been equipped with high-speed optical sensors that automatically count all tablets. And as soon as one carton is full, the system starts filling the next, without operator intervention.

Why the Holt Advisory believes . . . Gold Prices Must Soar Again

And recommends selected gold issues to buy now.

After having soared over 450% in just five years, gold prices began retreating in early 1975. The subsequent correction, which saw the free-market price giving up a little over half of its preceding gain, has been accentuated by this single development: The International Monetary Fund decided to sell some of its gold.

"A Gold Resurrection"

But the market has apparently discounted only the negative part of the new IMF policy. The Jamaica agreement that paved the way for the official auctions also permitted central banks to buy gold in the open market for the first time in modern history. And many have already started to do so.

Central banks that are interested in buying gold no doubt want to get . it at the lowest cost possible. They have no incentives to rush into the market. But, at the recent gold price, these banks alone have enough resources to absorb all the IMF offerings many times over. Before long, we submit, this lopsided supply-and-demand situation will be reflected in the marketplace.

Meanwhile, the gold price has apparently bottomed out in recent weeks. In our opinion, the correction phase has ended and a brand new upward drive is just ahead.

In a special report titled "A Gold Resurrection", The Holt Investment Advisory discusses in some detail the implications of the IMF auctions, potential central bank demand, the widening currency gyration, and the renewed U.S. trade deficit. Its conclusion: The price of gold. must advance sharply from this point forward.

An Arab Bear Raid?

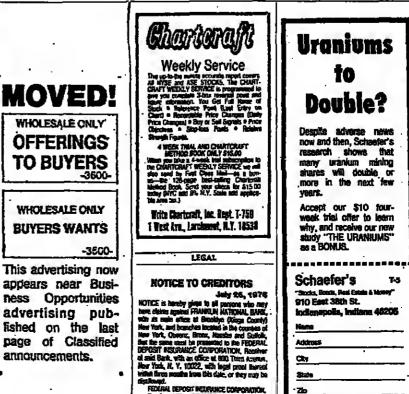

As a matter of fact, we believe a new bull market for gold could have started weeks ago. In a separate report, the Advisory explains why the gold market may have been deliberately depressed lately by Mideast interests. From credible though unconfirmed reports, the Advisory infers that billions of dollars worth of bargain gold have been accumulated by these bear raiders in the process. If so, there is little floating supply left.

If you are interested in gold-coin, bullion or securities-we believe you will want to read and reread these eye-opening analyses, which also include a list of precious metals securities attractive for purchase now. Memo from Lyle Stuart:

For more than a dozen years I have been going to Angelo's in Rome for my custom-tailored suits.

For the past few years I would say: "Please make the suits tight. I expect to lose weight." But I never lost the weight!

Last year I broke 240 pounds. I didn't go to Rome. What was the point of patronizing one of the world's finest tailors for expensive suits when I was so obviously overweight that even the skill of headtailor Guido couldn't conceal the fat?

I despaired of ever becoming thin again. And then, quite by accident, I stumbled upon an article in last January's Vogue about the new weight reduction approach that was being researched at Harvard University and Case Western University, among other places. A program, based on this research, was being administered by Dr. Robert Linn in Pennsylvania.

I drove 120 miles for my first appointment. It was my last chance.

ft worked.

In 120 days I lost 83 pounds.

Instead of rewarding myself with my favorite ice cream, I did it by throwing away all my clothes and flying to Rome. When I taxied to the Via Bissolati and walked into Angelo's, people stared in disbelief. Angelo Vittuci almost didn't recognize me! I had lost seven inches from around my waist!

Dr. Linn's program not only took it off. It changed my eating habits and my food attitudes so that I'm keeping It off!

You can appreciate this only if you too have been struggling for years against overweight.

I went to Dr. Linn as a patient. Now I'm his publisher. THE LAST CHANCE DIET is subtitled -"When everything else has failed." And it's for people who, like myself, have tried everything. The things that worked for a short time and the things that never worked.

If you want to know how I took it off and why I'll keep it off, I urge you to read THE LAST CHANCE DIET.

THE LAST CHANCE DIET by Dr. Robert Linn is available at book shops everywhere. Or you may send $10 plus $1 for postage and handling to Lyle. Stuart Inc. 120 Enterprise Avenue, Secaucus, New Jersey 07094.
